DISCUSSION:

We’re hearing a lot about the LAX guest experience. How did we get here? This commitment to enhance the guest experience is shared by LA Mayor Eric Garcetti who has a deep commitment to and passion for improving the level of customer service throughout the city. At LAX, we get particular attention because we are the first and last impression of the City of LA. The Mayor, the Board of Airport Commissioners and LAWA CEO Deborah Flint are fully committed to the guest experience and delivering a gold-standard airport. As part of this commitment, all LAX employees are expected to participate in training so we all share a common understanding of what we are trying to achieve together.

To set the groundwork, a cross-section of LAWA employees created an action plan with a number of items they believed would improve the guest experience. This training is a key item in the action plan to ensure that employees airport-wide are all providing a consistent level of service. There are some 65 different brands at LAX that make up the various links in the LAX service delivery chain. If even one of these links is weak and breaks, that’s what colors the guest’s experience. And the guest won’t necessarily blame the weak link, they may blame the entire chain which is LAX. It’s an “LAX EXPERIENCE”. So although it may not be our fault, it IS our problem. Instead of all these separate, distinct links, our wish is for all of these separate links to become one golden chain of exceptional experiences.

Our vision for the future leads us to our commitment to our guests with the creation of our brand statement. The brand statement was created by a cross-section of employees across LAX. This brand statement is not a slogan, tag line or jingle. It’s the “promise” that we keep in mind for everything we do at the airport. It’s what we want our guests to experience each and every time they come through LAX regardless of who is responsible for that service.

This is the brand statement: “At LAX, we strive to make our guest visits efficient, hospitable and memorable by providing modern, world-class facilities, services and innovation that showcase the ambiance and excitement of Los Angeles and the lifestyle and warmth of sunny Southern California.”

DISCUSSION QUESTION:

We connect our guests to the world. We are now using the word, “guest”, instead of “customer”. Why do you think we are doing this?

Possible responses: It’s all a part of an exciting culture change that includes a shift to a hospitality mindset in which passengers are not just customers – which is more of a business transaction. Instead, they are viewed as guests in our home who feel welcomed and appreciated. The use of the term, “guest”, is not just a name change; it’s a culture change. It’s an immediate attitude and mindset shift in the way we view and treat our passengers. The words we use are powerful because when we change the way we speak, we change the way we act. How we treat guests and how we make them feel will always be so important to treat our guests with care as if they are a guest in our home.

There are construction improvements everywhere! We are in the midst of a $14 billion modernization effort, including nearly two dozen projects with almost $3 million spent per day.

We realize that construction can create a lot of anxiety, stress and confusion – not only for our guests, but for our employees, as well. Our guests deal with the construction on a periodic basis, but you deal with the construction every day – whether it’s on the roadways approaching the airport, taking the parking shuttle to the Central Terminal Area (CTA), getting around the CTA in a vehicle or by foot. We know it’s tough and we acknowledge that. So thank you for dealing with all of the many challenges just to get to and from work. It will be painful for a while, but I hope you’ll agree that the end result of all of this construction will be well worth the wait. We’d like to share with you a couple video clips of the future of LAX.
